

On Purpose Now.

Anal Enlightenment

In the South there is a word called “bassackwards”. For people who do not cuss it is used, as a way, to say something is ass backwards. The raunchy people who do cuss use it too, since the word has its meaning built in. Even the word itself is ass backwards. It is used to describe something that is upside, down... inside, out... or simply headed the wrong way. As a young man learning a trade in the construction industry, it was common for me to hear “well, you are going about it all bassackwards.”

Many of the spiritual theories teach that the world is upside down, inside out and backwards. In the Life Purpose Curriculum, the Ego's "Purpose" is stated “to prove fear is real, Love is not Here”. When this is believed, accepted as an assumption, the world is made bassackwards. Which is to say, all thought, energy and action downstream of it sets you upon a course to find Love/Purpose/what is essential somewhere else. The monologue goes something like this: “when I hit that financial goal, get that dream home built, attract the relationship I imagine, am given the promotion at work, finally there will be lasting peace and fulfillment”. THEN I will be satisfied, feel Love and finally live On Purpose. Yet, this tail-chasing never ends. Ever wonder why?

Perhaps at one time or another, you have hit your financial goal, got the home, attracted the relationship you imagined. How long did your satisfaction last? Did it bring you lasting fulfillment, peace or presence of Love? If your answer is no, maybe you were going about it all bassackwards.!? As the country song says, you’ve been “looking for Love in all the wrong places”, looking for it somewhere else.

Now that the subject of Love has come up, let’s take a real and honest look at how it is perceived. Maybe a couple of questions can help open an inquiry. Give this some thought... Where is Love? In questions about this with thousands of people, after due deliberation, most people conclude Love must be everywhere. It is said to be omnipresent. If that is true, it will mean there is nowhere Love is not. Therefore, Love is Here. It must be. Yes, even here where you are reading these very words. Yes, even when we are judging, blaming and shaming our self and others. Think of the magnitude of change this will bring if you were to accept, in your mind, that Love Is Here..!

Let’s take another question. When is Love available, and in what time can it be found? If we take the previous conclusion that Love is everywhere, then it stands to reason it must be all the time too. Everywhere all the time, omnipresent and omnipotent.

This leads us to the wisdom of the ages. Love is Here, On Purpose Now.

This brings an impasse with the Ego’s belief system. Only one of these theories can be true. Either fear is real and Love is not here, or Love is Here and Now. One of these beliefs is bassackwards!

Now we are at a point of Anal Enlightenment. Which one is bassackwards and which is forward or right side up? If you believe that Love is not here, you will pursue it in another time, place and situation. On the other hand, if you believe that Love is Here/Now your trust of your purpose and the power to live with presence in this moment will guide your thought, energy and action. Everything hinges on your choice in this moment of truth. Is the belief that fear is real, Love is not here bassackwards and anal? Or is the notion that Love is Here and Now what is bassackwards and anal?

If you choose to continue the pursuit of Love and purpose elsewhere, even if you find it, the belief it is not here may keep you from seeing it. On the other hand, if you start with Love Here, On Purpose Now you may see options for living with clarity, power and creativity that have been hidden from your view.

Either way, you have now been exposed to Anal Enlightenment. This is to say that, after deliberating the choices, you can decide what you believe is bassackwards and what is right side up.

It is our choice and free will to follow fear in the pursuit of Love and purpose elsewhere. The never ending, tail-chasing this sets in motion will lead all the way to death if we let it. However, if we make this choice after due deliberation we can take pride in living as one of the enlightened assholes of the world.

If you don't choose your purpose and decide how you will live it, you won't.

Will you choose to believe in and follow fear, or will you choose Love Here, On Purpose Now?

On Purpose Now.
